MAYFIELD HERITAGE GROUP PRESENTS

CHEDDLETON FLINT MILL AND HERITAGE TRUST

Friday 23rd March 2018 @ 7.00pm

Cheddleton Flint Mill Industrial Heritage Trust celebrated its 50th birthday on 18th October 2017. Dr John Outram, a trustee, will give an interesting and informative talk about what the mill did, its history and its preservation as a museum by the Trust.

The talk will commence at 7.00pm on Friday 23rd March 2018 at the Church Rooms in Church Mayfield.

Entrance is £3.00 per person and will include light refreshments

The earliest reference to milling at Cheddleton mill dates to 1253.

A document, dated 1694, refers to corn milling at the site.

Cheddleton Flint Mill has been an important building in the corn milling industry and In the late 18th century the complex was converted to grind calcined flint for use in the pottery industry

Josiah Wedgwood successfully marketed a new product called "creamware" which used calcined flint from Cheddleton Mill
